BiblioGov. Paperback. Book Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. Paperback. 66 pages. Dimensions: 9.7in. x 7.4in. x 0.1in. According to the Department of Labors latest estimate, 5, 900 private industry workers died from work-related injuries and illnesses. The Occupational Safety and Health Act authorizes Labor to obtain from employers and other sources information needed to determine the most serious safety and health hazards. Better data on the causes and severity of safety and health problems are needed for developing and modifying standards to administer the Act, insuring enforcement of and compliance with the Act, and employer-employee information and education activities. Basic questions which remain unsolved are: (1) the need for all of the existing standards and their adequacy for preventing injuries; (2) the relative priorities which should be given to developing standards on thousands of safety and health hazards not covered by standards; (3) whether the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) and State compliance inspections are directed first to the workplaces most likely to have specific hazardous conditions that can cause death or serious disabling injuries and illnesses; (4) whether OSHA and State inspectors emphasize specific conditions that can cause death and seriously disabling injuries or illnesses; (5) whether penalties and correction deadlines for violations found during inspections consider adequately the seriousness of the hazards as required by the Act and Labor procedures; and (6) whether the levels and directions of information and education efforts are proportionate with the potential for reducing to a minimum serious safety and health problems. Labors data on work-related injuries and illnesses as reported by employers would not be adequate for directing efforts to protect workers from toxic chemicals and other health hazards. Labor has more authority to obtain such data than it has used to date. This item ships from La Vergne, TN....
